Test Tips for the PSAT / SAT

Many questions will ask for the “best” answer, so don’t respond as soon as you identify a correct answer. More than one might seem correct. Consider ALL the answer choices and choose the best one.

- Eliminate wrong answers. None of the answers will be glaringly wrong. In fact, they’re worded in such a way that they’ll often all seem feasible. Generally, wrong answers are too specific, too broad, describe a relationship in reverse order, or just present a totally unrelated concept.

Hints to help recognize an answer choice that is usually wrong:

- Extreme Words: Choices with descriptive words (adjectives and adverbs) that sound too extreme, such as despicable, spotless, brilliant, or thrilling.
- Absolute (Never Ever) Words: Choices with words like always, never, everyone and all.
- Bait and Switch: Choices that use the exact same wording as the passage –correct answers will paraphrase the words used in the passage.
- Never Mentioned: These are “distractors” –they are statements that are true about life, but are never mentioned in the passage.
- Trick answers contain words that remind you of the passage, or they make true statements, but they don’t answer the question. Avoid these by thinking of your own answer first, then read the choices second. Find the choice that best matches your own answer.
- When in doubt, guess – there’s no penalty for guessing. Questions on the reading and writing sections don’t get progressively harder (math does). So if you’re on a difficult reading question, make a guess and move on; the next one might be easier.

Test Tips for the PSAT / SAT

Write in your test book:

1. Cross out wrong answers.
2. Circle hard questions you guessed on to come back to later.
3. Work out math problems.
4. Take notes while reading...
 - Underline main ideas draw an arrow to it.
 - ☆ Star and underline important terms. ☆
 - Write a short note next to important points. note!
 - Circle clues that hint to the author’s point of view, argument or attitude.
 - Number statements with supporting points or the order of occurring events. 1. 2. 3.
